In the ten years since IV's last fundraising appeal, our readership has grown more than ten times larger. Back then, we were proud to report that IV had 10,000 visits a month, around 120,000 a year. Now we average around 4,700 visits a day, more than 1,600,000 annually, to our website. Our regular monthly pdf edition brings us more readers. That's to say nothing of the dozens of periodicals and sites that republish and translate our articles.

While our readership has continued to grow, there was a big leap in readership at the time of the Arab spring. Since then we've been able to regularly produce the PDF and to translate more material than ever before. We have continued to bring news from struggles across the globe, to participate in debates taking place about feminism, about LGBTIQ politics, about anti-racism and about ecosocialism

To continue this work, we need your help in three ways.

First, we need a lump sum for our translators. Our translators rely on IV to pay them regularly and fairly. This year we've asked those comrades for more of their time than normal, and that leaves them unable to take up as much other work. 1,600 pounds will provide a lump sum to get them back where there should be.

Second, we need some regular income from readers to allow us to continue to invest at a higher level in translation and to rent a faster internet server able to support our peak days when visits go over 10,000.

Third, we want to produce some printed collections. Our readers in Britain are helping us to produce thematic collections of IV articles, starting with International Viewpoint on Resisting Trump. These will be inexpensive 104-page compact magazines, in an attractive perfect-bound format.

The two last projects will be ongoing and so we are also asking for small regular gifts. Using Paypal, you can make a small, regular donation to help support us.
