The United States has joined Israel in its war on Iran, increasing the chances for a wider regional war, one that could become a forever-war quagmire as the Iraq War did. President Donald Trump sent B-2 bombers to drop bunker-buster bombs on nuclear facilities in Fordo and Natanz while a submarine launched Tomahawk missiles at another facility in Istfahan. Democrats condemned Trump for violating the Constitution which says that only Congress can declare war, and Alexandria Ocasio Cortez suggested that he should be impeached for that, though it is not clear how many Democrats actually oppose the bombing or joining the war.
