The Anti-Imperialist and Anti-Fascist Conference of the Americas will take place in Buenos Aires on 17, 18 and 19 December.

This conference follows on from the one we held in Porto Alegre last March. Its aim is to coordinate mobilisations and provide a collective response from organisations fighting against the far right and neo-fascism. [1]

Facing imperialism

In Latin America, we are witnessing a resurgence of imperialism. We see this in Cuba, we see it in Venezuela too, and we believe it is essential to develop common strategies and tactics for this struggle.

Although we have achieved significant victories, such as in Brazil and the United States, we cannot let up in our efforts. We know that capitalism, in its most acute crises, attacks the rights of the working class by seeking to discipline it, and that the markets will not passively accept the changes that are set to occur in the coming period.

An internationalist response

It is therefore urgent that we organise ourselves to provide an equally internationalist response and to show our solidarity with all peoples suffering from the precariousness of work and the plundering of their territories, as is the case with indigenous peoples and peasant communities. This solidarity also extends to those who are singled out as scapegoats, as we have seen particularly in the United States, where the burden falls on migrants, feminists and people of African descent.

The importance of unity

In this sense, we cannot let this historic moment pass us by; we cannot allow ourselves to become divided. Mobilisations must continue, on the streets and, where necessary, at the ballot box. However, it is the struggles themselves that will truly make a difference at this time of confrontation with the fury of capital.

Come in large numbers to Argentina in December, so that together we can hold this debate and move towards a world without fascism!
