Ukraine received its independence 29 years ago. The cause of political independence has always been close to the struggle for the social liberation of Ukrainians, particularly the country's rebellious workers and peasants. The right of nations to self-determination was originally the slogan of the socialists Ivan Franko and Lesia Ukrainka.

Since 2014, the Ukrainian ruling elite and its politicians have mercilessly fought over who could pose as the main "independence fighter," while actually reducing Ukraine to neocolonial dependency. During these years, instead of modernizing the economy and strengthening social protections, Ukrainian politicians have looted budgets and carried out "reforms" to improve the lives of the oligarchs. This led to huge holes in the budget and the decline of infrastructure. As a result, Ukraine became utterly dependent on IMF loans and the financial and technical assistance of the EU and the United States, in this way falling into complete political dependence. All of these forces dictate Ukraine's domestic policies: increasing the cost of utilities, refusing to regulate the prices of medicines, privatizing all aspects of the economy, and opening the real estate market to sell off the land.

Ukraine has actually lost its independence.

Arkadii Derkach's recently published recording indicate that during Poroshenko's presidency, the Vice President of the United States, Joe Biden (2008-2016), exercised a major influence over the enactment of Ukrainian laws, in the dismissal and appointment of public officials [1]

Then-President Poroshenko crawled before Biden for a loan of $1 billion. The current President Zelensky is not ready to reconsider these unequal relations with the West and continues Poroshenko's policy.

He continues to block all attempts to adjust the conflict in Donbass and negotiate its peaceful return to Ukraine. He continues the Poroshenko government's censorship and suppression of civil rights and the promotion of ultra-right violence aimed against Ukrainians. Under foreign pressure, Zelensky continues the policies of:

- selling Ukrainian land;
- total privatization;
- raising the costs of electricity, water, housing.
- the protection or appointment to strategic positions of people chosen by the external entities exercising illegitimate influence over Ukraine.

We, the undersigned, call for an independent socio-economic policy for Ukraine. We demand

- from the current president and government: to review relations with the main source of external influences on Ukraine, including the United States and the International Monetary Fund, with a view to the restoration of Ukraine's independence.
- from the law enforcement agencies of Ukraine: to investigate the charges of treason and corruption of the former president of Ukraine and his circle and to provide the public with regular reports into this investigation. [2]
